The faith of man as interpreted in the Old Testament—

PEOPLE OF THE LORD:
The History, Scriptures and Faith of Ancient Israel
By HARRY M. BUCK, Wilson College

The essential business of introductory study of the Old Testament is examination of the scriptures themselves. PEOPLE OF THE LORD is a new introduction to the Hebrew scriptures that provides a revealing context for them, but does not, through restatement of their content, make direct reading of them superfluous. Chapters open with a selective list of biblical passages that should be read concurrently; the body of each chapter assumes that its biblical references have been read.

PEOPLE OF THE LORD does not merely offer a set of conclusions, but shows how scholars achieve their opinions and why certain issues are still debated. The reader is thus allowed to make independent judgments.

Perspective on the Old Testament is given through treatment of the historical and cultural environment of ancient Israel. The book consistently offers quotations and discussion of relevant non-biblical materials and recognizes that Israel supplied foundations for the Jewish and Muslim faiths, as well as for Christianity.

Attention is paid to the history of the compilation of the books of the Old Testament, but tedious detail is avoided. A special merit of the book consists in its showing the impact of the scriptures on the development of the religion of the Hebrews.

Beside the customary index of names and subjects, Professor Buck has created a helpful index of biblical references and two valuable appendices. The first is a brief critical review of the history of the text of the Bible and its English translations. The second is a bibliographical essay informative for both students and teachers. Special maps have been drawn for the book.

MAN’S RELIGIONS, Third Edition
By JOHN B. Noss, Professor Emeritus, Franklin and Marshall College

This outstanding work is described in Mentor’s Good Reading as “The best text on the world’s religions and their development.” It has been widely adopted for undergraduate courses, as well as for seminary programs. Maps and drawings have been added to this edition, and material has been revised to incorporate the results of recent scholarship. Revisions include: reconsideration of primitive religions in terms of recent anthropological research; additional information on Greek religion and on Buddhism in its first phase; new treatment of The Wisdom That Has Gone Beyond, The Trikaya, Tibetan Buddhism, and Zen; additional material on later Hinduism, the conquest of Canaan, The Dead Sea Scrolls, and recent developments in Christianity.

An important question from a six year old!

Or, "Dad, does God really care about us?" from an inquiring teen-age son or daughter. Such questions can be answered — if the family has a deep understanding of God as revealed through the Bible.

Daily devotions in The Upper Room, with meditation, Bible reading and prayer, help to bring about this understanding and to supply answers to the really important questions in life. Day by day, The Upper Room conveys profound truths in simple terms.

This is why The Upper Room has become more than a devotional guide to the millions of people throughout the world who use it. It has become part of a world movement — a way of life — and a ministry to those who seek spiritual strength for themselves and their loved ones.

The American Academy of Religion and its official organ, The Journal of Bible and Religion, have always had a special interest in acquainting professors of religion with the best contemporary literature in the field. Book reviews, book notices, and selected advertising have long been a part of the Journal.

This year eight publishers will arrange displays of their lists, exhibiting their new titles and their old favorites. Please patronize these exhibits, where you may examine new books at your leisure and place orders.

Concerning the Placement Service of the Academy

The American Academy of Religion wishes once again to call the attention of its membership to the offices of its Placement Service.

This service operates to assist members of the Academy in finding teaching positions in the field of religion. Members who are seeking placement are asked to write to the Placement Chairman, Professor Robert Osborn, Box 4735, Duke Station, Durham, North Carolina 27706. He will mail to the applicant duplicate placement forms, which, when they are executed and returned to the Placement Office, will be entered into the placement files. When an institution seeking to make an appointment inquires of the Placement Office, the placement chairman will mail to the institution the forms of those candidates who appear to be qualified for the position. Any direct contact between the inquiring institution and the candidate is initiated by the institution.

In order to make the office as effective as possible, there is an annual mailing, in the fall of the year, to the major college and university departments of religion, and to the major theological seminaries. Also, the Newsletter will carry notices of the placement service.

In order that the files be kept up to date, every candidate on file with the office is asked in the fall of each year to renew his application if placement is still sought for the next academic year.

This office is yours, and we urge you to use it should you be seeking placement or should you be seeking new appointments in your respective departments.

The services of the Placement Office will be available at the annual meeting, during hours to be announced at the meeting.

JESUS AND THE SON OF MAN
by A. J. B. Higgins
This pioneer work is destined to become a handbook in its field. Summarizing decades of research, this detailed study of the title “Son of Man” explores every occurrence of this reference to Jesus found in the New Testament. Through his work the author shows that the resurrection is crucial in any attempt to trace the genesis of the Son of Man sayings.

GOD AND TEMPLE
by R. E. Clements
The Jerusalem temple, more than any other institution of Ancient Israel, was the center of a faith that asserted that Yahweh, God of Israel, was lord of the whole earth. This is the conclusion of this detailed inquiry into the meaning and theological significance of the Jerusalem temple as a witness to the presence of God.

UNDERSTANDING THE OLD TESTAMENT

by Bernhard W. Anderson,
Drew University, New Jersey

- This new edition takes advantage of the advances in scholarly discussion that have taken place in the last decade.
- Portions of the text of Part I have been revised to take account of issues in the early history of Israel (Abraham to David) that have been clarified in recent years.
- An additional brief chapter dealing with the Book of Psalms and the worship of Israel has been added in response to a number of requests.
- Footnotes have now been included in all three parts which refer teacher and student to further discussions of debated points.
- The new edition reflects the revival of biblical studies in the Roman Catholic Church and the fruitful conversation now in progress among Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish scholars about the meaning of our biblical heritage.
